Nine New Tenure-Track Faculty Positions
Indiana University is Investing in Global and International Studies

INDIANA UNIVERSITY IS MAKING ONE OF THE NATION’S LARGEST INVESTMENTS IN INTERNATIONAL STUDIES. Building on more than a century of tradition and excellence at Indiana University Bloomington, the School of Global and International Studies is adding 25 new tenure-track faculty to its ranks, including searches for nine new positions this year. The new LEED-Gold certified home of SGIS opened this fall, bringing together more than 250 scholars, who cover every part of the world and teach up to 70 languages.

Conflict & Security
Associate or assistant professor specializing in security, conflict, and peace, interested in the origins and resolution of armed conflict.

Contemporary Russia
Assistant, associate, or full professor of contemporary Russian politics and society with broad expertise in and ability to address social, economic, and international issues.

International Governance
Assistant professor with expertise in international organizations and global governance.

Global Climate Change
Assistant professor with interests in the geopolitical, cultural, and economic dimensions of climate change, employing interdisciplinary qualitative approaches to research.

Chinese Politics
Assistant professor of contemporary Chinese domestic politics with active research agendas involving Chinese language sources and fieldwork experience in China, with preferred areas of research including political economy, authoritarian states, contentious politics, and political reform.

Contemporary Central Asia
Assistant, associate, or full professor of contemporary Central Asia with a specialty in the region’s economics, geography, history, international relations, political science, or sociology, with fieldwork experience in the region.

Korean Culture
Assistant professor in modern and contemporary Korean literature and cultural studies who can work across arts and humanities disciplines with expertise in any or all of the areas of modern Korean literature, film, popular culture, and media studies.

Japanese Language Studies
Assistant professor in Japanese language studies with specialty in, but not limited to, language education, second language studies, or linguistics, broadly defined.

Early Chinese History
Assistant professor in early Chinese history, covering any period from the Zhou (c. 1000 B.C.E.) through the Tang dynasty (c. 900 C.E.), with all sub-fields of historical studies encouraged to apply.

See our postings at sgis.indiana.edu/faculty/open-positions.shtml

Photo: The atrium in the new Global and International Studies building at Indiana University Bloomington features a wall of stones from ten countries, connecting Indiana’s limestone tradition to the university’s global history.